

LINDA BONNEY

STORYTELLER

CREATIVE WRITER

LEADER OF CONVERSATIONS

Linda seamlessly blends the past and the future through her powerful and captivating storytelling. She is a writer, digital journalist, podcast host, production manager, authour and, most of all, passionate lover of conversations. She lives and works in Tasmania alongside four kiddos, odd socks, and business friends who feel just like family.

She has two podcasts, Stories with a Sunday Roast and Mucked Up My Self-Care. In binge-worthy episodes, she highlights people from around the world. She loves to help us touch on nostalgic memories to better who we are and where we have come from. Through her storytelling and conversations, Linda helps others feel like they are sitting on a porch talking with a friend, quirky stories, and all.

She has authoured three narrative non-fiction books which blend personal experiences with the stories of others from the podcast, Stories with a Sunday Roast. With more projects also in production, she wonders if her washing pile will ever be up-to-date again.

In a parallel universe without any dirty clothes, Linda Bonney could tell a story boasting a stream of achievements she is currently dreaming about and working towards. Alternatively, she would roll her eyes, break from tradition, and add her character with something creative and imaginative like the extract below.

Linda Bonney invented electric cars, sliced bread, and sticky notes. She was also the first person to climb Mt Everest. She frequently teleports herself to your kitchen table and joins you for dinner. '10 out of 10 for the potatoes, only 2 out of 10 for the mushy peas', she writes on her return.

Let's connect and have a conversation about how I can take your audience to a new nostalgic dimension.
